

Construction

Underwood's Construction Law Practice Group represents businesses and individuals in relation to both residential and commercial construction. For decades, Underwood's attorneys have represented architects, engineers, design professionals, contractors, subcontractors, construction managers, owners, developers, sureties, material fabricators, suppliers, and governmental entities in a wide variety of construction-related matters.

Our construction attorneys handle both transactional and adversarial issues. Among other things, we assist with construction financing, contract negotiation and drafting, contract interpretation and compliance. We also assist when a construction related dispute arises. We help our clients analyze and investigate disputes and find efficient and effective solutions. If a dispute cannot be resolved without legal intervention, our attorneys have considerable experience handling complex construction litigation, mediation, and arbitration. We regularly represent parties in federal and state trial and appellate courts, private and court-directed mediation, private and AAA-sponsored arbitration.

Related Attorneys

- Wade Arnold
- David Backus
- C. Jason Fenton
- Cara Kennemer
- Richard E. Schellhammer
- Mike Smiley
- Fred Stormer
- Brad Timms