

UNDERWOOD

Consumer Litigation

Underwood's consumer litigation practice involves the prosecution and defense of common law and statutory consumer claims. Its lawyers serve as counsel in cases involving the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act, the Texas Insurance Code, breaches of warranty, and related tie in statutes (such as the Fair Debt Collection Act, Seller's Disclosure of Property Condition, and the Unfair Settlement Practices Act).

Disputes involving damage to property (hail, wind, fire, mold, and earth movement), the appraisal process, misrepresentations concerning the purchase or lease of real and personal property, products liability, and warranty claims are among the matters the Firm pursues and defends for its clients.
