

Todd Boykin is Board Certified in Commercial Real Estate Law, Residential Real Estate Law and Property Owners Association Law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization.

Todd Boykin is an accomplished real estate attorney whose practice spans developer projects, eminent domain and condemnation matters, as well as homeowners associations (HOAs) and condominium associations. Representing developers of commercial, farm, and ranch properties in the acquisition and development of real estate, Todd Boykin has helped dozens of developer clients to achieve their business goals.

Property owner associations, which include HOAs and condominiums, are a rapidly changing area of the law. As new legislation comes into effect, Todd Boykin helps clients to understand new legal requirements and address challenges proactively.

Todd Boykin has also represented hundreds of landowners across Texas in obtaining fair compensation for their land in connection with condemnation and eminent domain matters. He appears on behalf of landowners in administrative law proceedings before the Public Utility Commission and in electric transmission routing cases.

EXPERIENCE

Obtained $32 million for his client in a case against the State of Texas regarding property that was expropriated for the expansion of a state highway. The amount originally offered by the state was approximately $22 million.

Obtained $2.3 million for his client in a condemnation dispute over client's land that was expropriated for electric transmission lines. The amount originally offered was $450K.
