

Traci Phipps focuses her practice on assisting healthcare providers in transactional and regulatory matters.

Traci Phipps' practice covers various areas of health care including fraud and abuse laws, business transactions, and administrative and regulatory law. Traci is a certified public accountant with almost fifteen years of corporate accounting experience, including seven years in the dialysis industry. She worked closely with physician joint venture partners, legal and compliance teams, and operations on diverse matters including financing, ownership transactions and entity restructuring, compliance with fraud and abuse laws, and formulation of assorted agreements, such as leases and operating agreements. Traci brings this experience into her practice to better serve the unique legal needs of health care professionals and entities.
